TWO FALL TO DEATH FROM NEW BRIDGE

Guy-Ropes of a Derrick on the Manhattan Approach to the Williamsburg Span Broke, Carrying Three Men to the Street.

TWO OF THEM DIED LATER IN GOUVERNEUR HOSPITAL.

The Derrick Was Stationed Seventy Feet Above the Ground and the Two Men Killed Landed on a Pile of Steel Girders.

The breaking of guy ropes sustaining a derrick on the Manhattan approach to the new Williamsburg bridge precipitated three workmen into Delancey street and the corner of Goerck street this afternoon. Two of them were killed and the other was slightly injured.

The men were Herman Hansen, thirty-two years old, of No. 52 Charles street; Adolph Weber, of No. 74 South Ninth street, Brooklyn, who were killed, and William Pike, of No. 4 Goerck street, who was injured. The police of the Delancey street station are investigating the cause of the accident, and arrests are probable.

The roadway of the bridge at the point where the derrick was stationed is seventy feet above the ground. On the surface of the streets are great piles of steel, iron and other material and heaps of sand.

Hansen, Weber and Pike were the crew of the derrick, and were engaged in hoisting material from the street. When the supporting ropes broke the derrick toppled over and fell across the open work sustaining the framework of the roadway. The men went through.

Pike landed on a heap of sand, and got off with a contused hip, bruises and internal injuries, which the surgeon who examined him think are not fatal. He insisted upon being taken to his home, a short distance from the scene of the accident.

Hansen and Weber fell on a pile of steel girders and were broken all to pieces. Both were alive when an ambulance arrived from Gouverneur hospital, but they died soon after that institution.

The superintendent in charge of the work is unable to say what caused the supports of the derrick to break, and policemen were detailed to gather evidence.

WOMAN FOUND DEAD BY NEIGHBORS.

Missed for Two Days, when Search Was Made—Heart Disease the Cause.

(Special to The Evening World.) PATERSON, N. J., July 15.—Mrs. John King, widow of Assemblyman John King, of Passaic, was found dead in her apartment, at No. 205 Straight street, Paterson, to-day. She had been missed for two days, and neighbors went to her apartment to-day to inquire her. They found her lying face down on the floor.

Coroner Blauvelt and County Physician McBride made an investigation. The County Physician said that death was due to heart failure.

BRONX CITIZENS ROUSED BY THE ROXBURY CASE

Mysterious Murder of the Tea Man Creates Alarm Among the Residents of that Section and They Will Meet to Ask for Better Police Protection.

SUSPECTS IN CASE ARE SET AT LIBERTY.

Three of the Four Men Who Have Been Under Suspicion Regain Their Freedom by What Inspector Titus Calls the Process of Elimination.

Thoroughly aroused by the Roxbury murder, the citizens of the Bronx are to assemble in mass meeting Friday night to protest against what they call the inadequate police protection afforded that section of the city.

The leader of this movement is the Rev. John W. Campbell, pastor of the Tremont Methodist Episcopal Church, assisted by T. C. Lewis, a real estate dealer, of 894 Tremont avenue. Both were active this afternoon consulting other residents as to the course to be pursued. The meeting will be held in Dr. Campbell's church.

"There is no doubt in our minds but that Mr. Roxbury was the victim of a robbery," said Mr. Campbell, "and there is no telling when another one of our citizens may meet his death in the same way. We have been neglected by the city authorities shamefully. Our protests have been unheeded. We have been laughed at when we have asked for ample protection. Now we propose to take some steps to have our rights respected."

Price Fans the Flame. Former Police Capt. James K. Price was a visitor to the Bronx this afternoon and fed the flame of the indignation of the citizens. The Captain's last command before his retirement was the precinct in which occurred the Roxbury tragedy. He told the citizens that frequently he went to Mulberry street, and asked for an increased force. He said the police protection should be four times what it was, but that he was only sneered and laughed at.

Although twenty-five detectives, working under the direct supervision of Inspector Titus, are trying to solve the mystery of the murder of Charles Roxbury last Friday night, the solution is not in sight. Inspector Titus says he has been working by the "process of elimination" on four suspects and that three of them have been eliminated.

Ex-Convict Goes Free. The first is the ex-convict, who was suspected from the first. He has cleared himself of suspicion. The second is the man seen on a trolley car crossing One Hundred and Sixty-first street, at 10 P. M., an hour after the murder. It is known that the murderer reached One Hundred and Sixty-first street less than ten minutes after Mr. Roxbury was attacked, or a little after 9 o'clock, and it is not likely that he would wait around there for an hour before taking a car.

The suspect is what is known to the police as a "bushwhacker." A "bushwhacker" is a man who conceals himself in quiet places, notably in shady parts of the parks, at night, and demands blackmail from couples he surprises there. This suspect has been a frequent visitor to a saloon near Morris avenue and One Hundred and Sixty-first street and lives near there.

He has been without legitimate employment for a year or more, and various policemen in that locality have suspected the means through which he was able to obtain money, of which he seemed to have plenty. In fact, one of his victims recognized him and reported to the police, but he would not prosecute because of the publicity.

(Special to The Evening World.) BRIGHTON BEACH RACE TRACK, July 15.—David Johnson, the famous plunger, who has won and lost fortunes on the turf, is an absentee from the ring. He has lost since Westchester $125,000, and now owes in the ring a sum estimated to be $50,000.

To the bookmakers to whom he owes this amount Johnson has given four and six months' notes, all endorsed by Sam Barry, an old-time bookmaker, now wealthy and retired.

Johnson is not regarded as a "welcher" by any means. He has been "welched" by many times before, but has always repaid his losses and made good. At one time in his career it is said that he owed $100,000 in the betting ring, all of which he repaid later, and was reinstated in good standing.

Johnson was a member of the Metropolitan Turf Association, but last winter he sold his seat and announced his retirement from the turf. He was a heavy loser last season. The bookies have faith in Johnson's ability to win another fortune.

The heavy attendance at Brighton still keeps up. Every day the grand stand is packed, and the betting ring is unceasingly jammed. It is said by Mr. Ensign, the grand stand owner, that the attendance to-day was the largest of the week. The card was very attractive and promised good sport.

The Atlantic was the stake fixture, but it had selling conditions attached, so that only a few of cheap two-year-olds faced the starter.

The third race, a handicap at six furlongs, was really the feature of the afternoon, having a high class of horses engaged. The track was in good shape.

One mile and a sixteenth. Starting weights, jockeys, St. H. F. Fin. Betting. The Regent, 12, Gannon, 2 1/4, 12 to 1. Albany Girl, 10, Gannon, 2 1/4, 10 to 1. Mary Worth, 10, Gannon, 2 1/4, 10 to 1.

Start good. Won easily. Time—1:49. The Regent went to the front at the start, made all the running and won a hard drive by a length from Albany Girl. Mary Worth was second to the stretch, and was third, beaten half a length.

(Special to The Evening World.) EXPOSITION PARK, PITTSBURG, July 15.—The Giants arrived here to-day after a hard night on the good ship Arion via the B. & O. from Cincinnati. Heavy seas were encountered nearly all the way, with the vessel tossed so violently that Ben Bell, treasurer, was hurled from an upper berth and closely escaped going out of an open window.

A husky crowd of 4,000 spectators is armed at every point for a vocal assault upon the Giant team. An audience posted on the stands betting on every turn, and more than anxious to see a scrap between Bowerman and Clarke.

But they were to be doomed to disappointment unless Clarke forced the issue, as Bowerman got word just prior to seeing the field that Doheny was not to play. The Pittsburghers had a hot start from start to finish. McGraw saved up "Matty" a whole week, so as to work him twice against the Pirates, while Clarke has kept Doheny and Philippi in trim for some battles royal.

First Inning.
It was a fair day for Pittsburgh when Umpire Emulo called time and George Browne heard the yell of an audience to tackle Doheny's shifty southpaw. Browne swiped at the first one, sent a baby roll, but the pitcher handled. (Cheers.) Van Halren had applause, but it did him little good with his poke to Ritchey. Then McGinn touched a tender one to third and was thrown out a mile, while the bleachers roared and rocked with yell and applause. No runs.

As Bowerman stepped behind the plate 5,000 people broke into a fierce chorus of boo and hiss. But the pitcher's attention to it and "Matty" swung a few of his best, one of which Beaumont tapped into the field. The pitcher was playing snappy, nifty ball. Clarke patted one to McGinn, who gobbled it and said it to "Matty." The white-haired boy, who knows every one of the Pirates' weaknesses, gave them to seeing where he could not nibble. No runs.

Second Inning.
Meres could not connect with Doheny a little bit, turning in two wide hits, and being called for the other. The Giants seemed a bit rattled at the noise of the usual "rough and tumble" as they were getting one sniff at a foul. Babo did something better, waiting for a hot ball, but Doheny was not enough good for the occasion, forcing Babo at second. No runs.

Wagner clouted a home run to Brennan, who drove high, so that McGraw muffed it, and the Pirates had their first run on the score. McGinn broke his bat on a bunt that "Matty" stopped. Then he nailed a grounder with one mitt and tossed Ritchey out to first. No runs.

Third Inning.
Bowerman got it good when he came to bat and rattled with the first hit that had a price put on it. Browne had a hard time with Doheny and retired with a fly to left. Van could only bounce to Doheny. No runs.

Smith straight into Brennan, who threw straight this time. Doheny played monkey shins with Doheny, giving him three good ones in succession. Beaumont expired Bresnahan to McGinn. No run.

Fourth Inning.
McGinn belted one that had a ticket for left field fence, but Clarke pulled it down with a yard reach. Leach and Brennan had a little tussle, but McGinn did the same thing. Sebring making a great catch, and nearly doubling Browne at first. Nothing but first. Ritchey continued the airship business to Ritchey. No runs.

Fifth Inning.
Clarke opened with a terrific clip close to the left line that sent Doheny to center. He scored on Sebring's rap to center that was good for two bases. Wagner, then, instead of sac'ing, threw McGinn did the same thing. Sebring making a great catch, and nearly doubling Browne at first. Nothing but first. Ritchey continued the airship business to Ritchey. No runs.

Sixth Inning.
Browne began nicely with a smart hit to center. Van could not help any, flying to right. Instead of sac'ing, Sebring made a great catch, and nearly doubling Browne at first. Nothing but first. Ritchey continued the airship business to Ritchey. No runs.

LEO HAS HOPES THAT HE WILL LIVE SOME DAYS

Tells Monsignor Angeli, One of His Secretaries, That He Hoped the Oppression of His Chest Would Pass Away Within That Time—His Condition Unchanged.

TAKES NOURISHMENT AFTER A LONG REFRESHING SLEEP.

Physician Declares Either Cardiac Paralysis or Cerebral Anaemia Will Probably Cause Leo's Death, but that His Hour Cannot Be Predicted—Condition Unchanged To-Day.

ROME, July 15—7.25 P. M.—The following bulletin has just been issued:

"During the day no special phenomena were noticed in the general condition of the august patient. The depression in his strength was not augmented. Respiration, pulse and temperature about stationary. Respiration 30, temperature 36.4 centigrade, pulse 84.

(Signed) "ROSSONI," "MAZZONI," "LAPPONI."

ROME, July 15—8.10 P. M.—The doctors entered the sick-room of the Pope for their evening examination at 5.40 P. M. to-day, earlier than usual, intending to make a thorough examination of the patient.

He had been sleeping quite soundly since noon. A few minutes ago he took a little nourishment.

Speaking to Monsignor Angeli, one of his secretaries, the Pontiff said he felt oppression of the chest, but hoped it would pass away in a few days.

It now looks as if the Pope's prediction that he would live until Thursday may be realized.

After a comparatively quiet night, he became restless during the forenoon and complained of inability to sleep. He turned uneasily from side to side and seemed unable to settle himself in a comfortable posture, but there was no recurrence of those dangerous periods of delirium which aroused such apprehension yesterday.

The doctors continue to feel that the patient's condition is extremely dangerous, but they say he may still linger for days. They repeat that all of the ordinary calculations are quite likely to fail in the present extraordinary case.

DANGER LIES IN PROSTRATION.

Speaking of the specific conditions, the doctors say that they think the pneumonia has practically disappeared. The regathering of liquid in the pleura is so slight as to cause the patient no trouble. The chief danger lies in the almost complete prostration, succeeding the acute stages of the disease.

When Dr. Mazzoni entered the Pope's sickroom this morning he found His Holiness in almost the same condition as last night. Pope Leo said: "I feel better than I did yesterday morning."

On leaving the Vatican Dr. Mazzoni, in reply to the query, "Is the end imminent?" answered, "It cannot be called so." "Then is it near?" was asked. To this Dr. Mazzoni replied: "In order not to make a mistake let us say it is not far distant."

The official news given out at the Vatican states that in his delirium the Pope spoke especially of pilgrimages and recited disconnectedly Latin verses. He often seemed panic-stricken, crying to Dr. Lapponi, his valet, Andrea, and Mgr. Angeli, one of his secretaries: "Where are you? Do not abandon me."

MAY LINGER SEVERAL DAYS.

Dr. Lapponi left the Vatican this morning to pay another visit to his daughter, who is suffering from a fever. He said, in reply to inquiries, that the Pope might linger several days longer.

Although the official bulletin conveys the impression that the Pontiff passed a comparatively quiet night, his condition was at all times critical. An eminent prelate who entered the sickroom at midnight said on leaving (Continued on Second Page.)

Doheny. Bowerman, hooted every step of the way, raced against time and Hans Wagner's throw was in vain. Matty did in Leach's grasp. No runs.

Seventh Inning.
The Giants were all weak with the stick. Bresnahan popping a little one to Wagner. Babo had a good eye, taking his second out. Babo turned up his toss at second off Gilbert's rap. Bowerman fled to Ritchey. No runs.

Bresnahan made a good stop from Leach and then pulled McGinn off the bag with the throw. Ritchey hit the atmosphere. Bresnahan had the throw all right off Smith. Leach taking second. Babo made a circus catch from Doheny's Texas League. No runs.

Eighth Inning.
Matty died. Wagner to Ransfield. Browne rolled right into Ritchey's glove. Van took a stroll. Ritchey caught to the foul line for Sebring's point. Wagner stung Gilbert's fingers with a line drive. For the second time
